ForceSelect plans bursary scheme for all three military services

Wed, 1 Jun 2011

Ex-military staffing specialist ForceSelect is to develop a national network of independent schools offering bursary places to families of all three Armed Forces based on the success of a pilot scheme.

The bursary pilot scheme has already seen its first two beneficiaries granted places at independent school Mill Hill.

Ellie King and Megan O'Kane will start at the school in the autumn term this year having undertaken a rigorous exam and interview process to win the bursaries. In order to be eligible, families must also fit certain specified financial criteria.

Mill Hill offers a discount of 20% on fees to children of service leavers, as well as currently serving Forces personnel who do not qualify for the bursaries. The scheme is also open to the children of service widows and those who have been medically discharged.
